

AIR ROYALE INTERNATIONAL CEO WAYNE J. RIZZI SELECTED AS GLOBAL MEMBER OF THE WORLD TRAVEL & TOURISM COUNCIL (WTTC)

Los Angeles - February 16, 2005 -- CEO Wayne J. Rizzi of Air Royale International, one of the leading private jet charter companies, was recently selected to be a member of the prestigious World Travel & Tourism Council (WTTC), the only worldwide forum for prominent global business leaders representing the private sector of the travel and tourism industry.

"I am honored to be included among this influential group of business leaders," said Rizzi. "I look forward to enriching existing partnerships within the council, while also helping to further its goals."

Over the last 10 years, the WTTC has become the premier leadership organization for the private sector, with members accepted by invitation only. WTTC's mission is to raise awareness of the full economic impact of the travel and tourism industry, the world's largest generator of wealth and employment. The council represents more than 100 members who are key players in the world's leading travel and tourism companies, including Mr. J. W. Marriott Jr., chairman and CEO of Marriott International; Mr. Robert Selander, president and CEO of MasterCard International; Mr. Rod Eddington, chief executive of British Airways; and Gerard J. Arpey, president and CEO of American Airlines.

WTTC members rely on the council to provide an effective voice for the industry in its dialogue with governments around the world. This is vital in times of crisis, when individual company resources are stretched and collective efforts can produce a more significant impact. WTTC policies are set by an executive committee and implemented from London headquarters.
